Hope Basket Co. Is Using Night Shift On Big Production

Manager MacGregor Reports Largest Pay Roll in Plant's History

BUILDING NEW KILN

Double-Shift and $3,000 Weekly Pay Roll Thru Rest of Year

Production at the Hope Basket company plant is on a double-shift and the local industry is employing the largest number of persons in all the years it has been established here, The Star learned today.

This bright spot in the career of local business for 1930 is exceptional considering the future of the Arkansas peach crop, on which 90 per cent of the basket company's activity normally depends. G. J. MacGregor, company manager, told The Star today that the failure of the peach crop probably cost his firm 150 carloads of baskets.

Knowing in advance that the peach output was destroyed this year, the local plant obtained orders for baskets in other territory and was so successful that it not only continued operations at capacity, but employed a night shift.

$3,000 Weekly Pay Roll

Mr. MacGregor is employing approximately 250 persons, with an average more than $3,000 per week.

The night shift production is guaranteed by orders on hand until November 1, and probably through the balance of the year.

The company yesterday unloaded materials for a big kiln that will cost approximately $10,000, and which will convert the present air-drying method to the kiln treatment of baskets.

The new installation, which is a high-powered Moore cross-circulation kiln, manufactured by the Moore Dry Kiln company of Jacksonville, Fla., will have a capacity of 12,000 baskets in 10-hour shift, or more than 24,000 baskets a day with the present double-shift production.

More Fire Protection

One of the principal problems before the basket company management now, Mr. MacGregor told The Star, is securing additional fire protection for the plant. Two years ago the city converted a "dead-end" water main into a "loop" system at the basket mill. The mill fire-plugs are on a six-inch lateral line fed at either end by four-inch trunk lines.

The volume of water is satisfactory to the underwriters, Mr. MacGregor said, but they are penalizing the company because the entire south side of the mill is without fire-plugs. The basket company intends to petition the city to extensions of the present water mains in order to provide at least two fire-plugs on the sixth side of the plant.

Hope should be willing to do that, Mr. MacGregor said, because in the event of the total destruction of the basket plant by fire it is unlikely that with the shortage of timber in this section the mill would be replaced.

The company is anxious, he said, to obtain the full fire protection normally guaranteed all properties with the corporation limits.

Formally Charged In Buckley Killing

Claimed To Be Man Who Pointed Buckley To Three Gunmen

DETROIT, July 31.—(AP)—Angelo Levachi was formally charged with the murder of radio operator, Jerry Buckley, in the lobby of the LaSalle hotel on the morning of July 23.

Police say that he was placed under arrest as a suspect of having pointed Buckley out to the gunmen. He is the first man to be formally charged with the affair.

Meanwhile a search for the three gunmen is being made. Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox said that the identity of the three is known to men in his department.

Official Mark of 115 Sets Record for Hope

Maximum Reached Tuesday—Mercury Drops to 110 Wednesday, and Is 102 at 1 p. m. Thursday—State and Southwest in Grip of Terrific Heat

An all-time record of 115 degrees was reported for this city Tuesday by N. P. O'Neal, official weather observer.

The Star had previously reported an unofficial "high" of 108 degrees on small thermometers up town Tuesday, but Mr. O'Neal's federal government mercury left the more reliable instruments 7 degrees behind.

During the peak of this week's heat wave the average temperature for 23 points in Arkansas rose from 99 as of last week, to 107.

The heat moderated slightly yesterday, the highest official temperature in Hope being 110.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon the mercury stood at 102, as compared to 108 at the same hour Wednesday, indicating a further recession in this week's record-breaking heat.

Unsettled weather with the possibility of thunder showers and cooler temperature is forecast by the Weather Man tonight and Friday.

Three Deaths From Heat

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 31.—(AP)—Three deaths Wednesday were the aftermath of the hottest temperatures of the summer in Arkansas Tuesday. Two deaths occurred in the vicinity of Fort Smith following heat prostrations Tuesday. The victims, Thomas Frederick Anderson, well-known engineer of Heavener, Okla., at a Fort Smith hospital, and Mrs. Doc Carter, near Bonanza, Emanuel Bunch, assistant fire chief of Hot Springs, overcome by heat while fighting a woods fire near that city, died on the way to a hospital.

Rain fell at Fort Smith about 5 p. m. Tuesday totaling .05 inch. The high there was 106.

While temperatures over the state moderated somewhat Wednesday, they still continued excessive in many sections and well above the century mark in a number of instances.

Early reports on Wednesday's maximum temperatures in different sections of the state showed they ranged five to 10 degrees below Tuesday's season high marks, which in some cases were all-time records.

A short-lived relief in the form of sketchy breezes played over this section of the state Wednesday forenoon. The noon-day sun, however, turned these soothing breezes into hot blasts and the rest of the day was an uncomfortable continuation of the same heat wave that has gone on practically unmitigated for weeks.

Arkansans Turn Tables On Illini

Slurs Change to Praise When Iced Watermelons Arrive

How the Arkansas boys in Citizens' Military Training Camp at St. Louis this week turned the tables on some Illinois soldiers who "wise-cracked" about their native state, is related in Hope today by Barney Hamm, who got the story from Dudley Haddock, Little Rock, secretary of the Arkansas Chamber of Commerce.

The story goes that early this week the Arkansas citizens-soldiers who had been suddenly called out and lined up for a mysterious errand were greeted by their Illinois brothers with remarks like, "I guess you guys are going to clean up the yards and police the barracks," etc.

But in a few minutes the Arkansas boys were marched around the barracks to a shady nook where some friends had unloaded a car of iced Arkansas watermelons.

The Illinois men shortly discovered what it was all about, and in the heat of a scorching Missouri afternoon they gleefully turned their Arkansas brothers for forgiveness. However, the story has it that the Arkansas boys had hearts of flinty hardness, that they relented not, and ate up every morsel of watermelon by themselves—leaving neither rind nor core for those who threw rocks at their native state before the possibility of iced watermelon was thought of.

Admits Being Hired To Shoot Senator

Former Prohibition Officer Is Named As Employer

COLUMBIA, S. C., (AP)—Glen D. McKnight, former prohibition agent and admitted former bootlegger, was named in the confession of W. L. Thornley, World war veteran, as the man who hired Thornley to kill Senator E. J. Dennis, Governor John G. Edwards announced Wednesday afternoon after McKnight was found in Charleston.

Thornley previously had denied he shot the senator.

With Governor Richards at the state penitentiary when Thornley made his confession, the governor said, were Solicitor A. J. Hydrick of Orangeburg and W. C. Wolfe of Orangeburg, partner of Senator Dennis.

Following the confession Governor Richards' constables aided by officers from six counties swooped down on Berkeley county and arrested three men. A fourth, Glen D. McKnight, former prohibition officer, was being sought Wednesday.

Kiwanis Will Log Road To Dooley's

Committee To Inspect The Routes From Hope to Oil Area

As the first step in preparing for a possible all-weather road, the new oil field opened last week, Hope Kiwanians are making a log of the width, condition, and drainage, and needs of the route Friday afternoon.

C. W. Weltman and John P. Cox have been appointed to make this log, which would indicate the amount of work needed to make this a short route, satisfactory to present and future oil interests. It was indicated that much of the oil development in the neighborhood of the discovery well might be on the Hope side of the river. An all-weather route to Dooley's Ferry would place Hope closer to the center of oil activity than Texarkana, it was said.

Sign boards indicating a short route to the new oil field via Dooley's Ferry are to be erected on the Hope-Prescott highway by the Kiwanis Club within next week. Signs will be erected on the Hope-Nashville road soon, it was indicated.

Miss Winter Cannon and Mrs. Robert Campbell entertained the Kiwanians at their regular Thursday noon meeting with three beautiful violin and piano duets, which were greatly appreciated by the membership.

C. W. Weltman, president, in the absence of President Dewey Hendrix, who is on his vacation this week.

Foster Identified As Lingle Slayer

Policeman Says Tried to Arrest Him After Tunnel Shooting

CHICAGO, July 31.—(AP)—Frank Foster, Chicago gunman indicted for the slaying June 9 of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, Wednesday was identified as the slayer of the newspaperman by Policeman Anthony Ruffy who pursued Lingle's assailant across Michigan boulevard from the pedestrian tunnel scene of the assassination.

Lingle was slain as he was about to board a suburban train for the race track by a killer who fired a shot into the reporter's head then fled through the tunnel to Michigan boulevard. Patrolman Ruffy, on duty at Michigan boulevard and Randolph street, gave chase to the killer but he was eluded in the crowd.

Ruffy's identification of Foster broke with dramatic suddenness in court Wednesday at attorneys for Foster sought to obtain his release on bail. The patrolman said he was positive Foster was the man he chased through traffic after Lingle had been slain.

He said he was able to get a glimpse of his quarry as the man ran a zigzag course through vehicles and pedestrians and disappeared. The patrolman did not say why the identification had not been made previously to Wednesday's hearing.

The pistol with which Lingle was slain was purchased with 11 others by Foster, then a member of the Moran gang of northside hoodlums.

On the basis of this information Foster was arrested in Los Angeles and indicated for murder.

Ruffy's identification came Wednesday as Foster's attorneys were petition Judge Daniel Trude with a pending trial. Murder charges in Illinois prevent holding defendants without bail unless counsel can show "innocence" in the state's case.

Assistant state's attorneys were opposing bail for Foster and argued that to divulge their case in open court would jeopardize chances of solving the slaying. They offered to divulge their case to Judge Trude in chambers.

Counsel for Foster contended the state was keeping their client in custody only in an effort to effect a "trade" whereby Foster would divulge information the state believes has in exchange for his freedom.

The police while seeking Foster, even after his arrest, have never divulged Foster with the killing proper, but sought him in an effort to trace possession of the gun with which the reporter was slain.

With the development in the Lingle case a new gangland murder confronted the police Wednesday as the July grand jury neared the end of its search for the causes of underworld assassinations demanded by the public as a result of the uncovering of the underworld and police affiliations of Lingle.

Donnick Fildato was found in a beaten patch in a western suburb last night, shot and backed to death. There were no clues.

Crop damages, loss of cattle and destruction to houses and agricultural land has been enormous.

Expected To Land Late Today Amid Many Spectators

Six Giant Engines Work to Furnish Power of the Craft

CROWDS ON SCENE

Large Crowds Await the Arrival of the Huge Dirigible

ST. HUBERT Air Port, Montreal, Que., July 31.—(AP)—A giant dirigible, the R-100, approached the end of its flight from England today, at a reduced speed.

The previous speed of the greatest dirigible ever to rise into the sky, indicated to ground crews that she was expected to land at 4 o'clock this afternoon. At noon however, a message was relayed by wireless, stating that the landing would be made near seven o'clock this evening, eastern standard time.

Location of the huge ship is said to have been about 200 miles from Quebec, following the course of St. Lawrence river. No reason was given for the delayed landing. It is not thought that adverse weather has slowed down the speed of the ship or that any trouble has been experienced by the six great engines of the craft.

Should the airship arrive over Montreal early this afternoon she cannot before 7 o'clock on account of the atmospheric conditions. If the day is hot it cannot possibly tie up the mooring mast before the sun begins to sink.

Police on Scene

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police were on the landing field when the scarlet coats, black breeches with yellow stripes. They are keeping the field clear for the landing.

There were plenty of witnesses today that interest in the arrival of the R-100 was not confined within national boundaries. Newspaper reporters and cameramen by the dozen from the United States gathered here today and from the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics at Washington came Com. Charles R. Rosendahl, chief of American dirigible activities, who has flown the Atlantic in both the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin.

The R-100 will be at least a mile more than 100 feet high, in general way similar to the original high mast at Lakehurst, N. J., used prior to construction under Commander Rosendahl's supervision of the mobile stub mast now employed there. Whereas it formerly took about 200 men to handle the Los Angeles in a groundling operation before the stub mast was invented, officials here believe that the landing of the R-100 can be effected with the help of not more than a score of men.

Here's How They Do It

WOULD you know that those Californians already are talking about winning the I. C. 4-A track and field championships in 1931? And so soon after Southern California and Stanford placed one-two in the games at Cambridge little more than a month ago.

No wonder the east has been able to grab only one title in the last 10 years. Those westerners—Stanford, Southern California and the University of California—talk track and field athletics the whole year around.

Stanford already is lining up her weight men, hurdlers and sprinters for next spring. When school opens in September, Coach Dink Templeton will issue a call for candidates. Quite a number of those who will answer his summons will be men who took the long ride east to Cambridge in May. The remainder will be freshmen and men who were on the winning squad in the 1930 season.

With the championship meet 10 months away, Templeton already is predicting great things for his Cardinals. They say prospects are brightest in the history of the Palo Alto school, in spite of the graduation of those two big Berthas, Harlow Rother and Eric Krenz.

Football Season Nears

WHILE I'm on the subject of intercollegiate athletics, let me remind you that the days are getting shorter and the time is drawing nearer for the big football games that will be staged before millions of fans this fall. It may be well to bear that in mind—so that you'll have no kick coming if the usher guides you to seats back of the end zone.

At those institutions where football is a big industry—Illinois, Michigan, Notre Dame, Stanford, Southern California, Pitt, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Yale and some others—the boys who handle grid affairs have been putting in long and tedious hours getting every-

Notre Dame will open her new stadium this fall. You'll probably want to see the Fighting Irish in at least one home game this season. Purdue has added several thousand seats to Ross-Ade bowl. Other schools have replaced old turf with new green carpets of grass, closed up ends of stadium that previously were open, carried on extensive painting and decorative operations, and last but not least, fixed up press boxes for the poor guys who shiver at their typewriters so that you may read about the game in the papers.

Routings Listed For Farmers Week

Hempstead County Will Have Large Delegation In Attendance

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., July 31.—The best routes from all directions of the state and their scenic attractions have been prepared for farmers who will tour to the 12th annual Farmers' Week which convenes here at the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture August 5, by the state highway department.

It is recommended that traffic from the northern and northeastern part of the state from cities such as Jonesboro, Paragould, Walnut Ridge, etc., take highways No. 53, 9, and 12. This route crosses the Black river at Powhatan and enters the foothills of the Ozarks. A suggested alternate route goes through Harrisburg and Newport, crosses the White river at Batesville over the new free bridge, thence over graveled roads through the National

"Bride of the Regiment" at the Saenger Tonight

Daring from the first kiss to the final embrace! Romance of a wedding night, and the most surprising and amusing of climaxes. This is First National's all-color comic opera, "Bride of the Regiment," which opened last night at the Saenger theatre. The picture is a lavish depiction of romance and Italian temperament against a background of beautiful settings and intriguing comedy. It is doubtful if the sets ever have been surpassed in point of beauty. Interiors of an Italian castle and a cathedral are like exquisite paintings.

Vivienne Segal is the charming bride of a few hours around whom the musical story centers. The former stage star appears at her best against the beautiful background. She has a fine voice that is perfectly recorded in this Vitaphone operetta. With Allan Prior, another musical comedy favorite, she sings a number of tuneful songs. Walter Pidgeon, as the menacing Colonel Vultov, displays a fine voice and handsome bearing.

"Bride of the Regiment" relates the adventure of a night in Count Belmont's castle. Bringing home his beautiful bride, played by Miss Segal, Prior is forced to leave to escape capture by Austrian soldiers sent to quell a revolution.

Drunk with champagne, Vultov, an Austrian officer, seeks to dishonor the beautiful countess. She is saved by her wits and the timely intervention of her husband.

Musie is one of the picture's most delightful features, along with amusing and dramatic incidents developed in the story. The voices are all excellent and the songs well chosen. Some of the numbers are from "The Lady in Ermine," the original stage production, but many of them are new.

Louise Fazenda, Ford Sterling, and Lupino Lane are the trio responsible for most of the comedy. Miss Fazenda is at her best. Sterling and Lane are her riotous aides. Myrna Loy is seen as a fiery charmer again. Harry Cording and Claude Fleming have effective character roles in the large cast.

All-Around Star

Do you know this young man? He has been a tennis star of high ranking this summer. This fall his name will be in bold headlines because of his sensational football feats for Harvard. # The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 by NEA SERVICE, Inc. by ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAN RORIMER had been in Hollywood two weeks when he received a letter from an old newspaper friend in New York, ZIGGY ZIGGY, telling him to look up a man named ANNE WINTER, who came to Hollywood from Dan's home town, to "crash the scene."

Dan doesn't want to be bothered chaperoning "movie" girls, but he gets in touch with Anne Winter, expecting to find the sort of girl that he had described—and is literally swept off his feet by her charms.

They go to dinner, where Dan, at her request, tells about himself—how he had given up newspaper work to write fiction—and one of his stories had been bought by the movies, a circumstance that led to his securing a contract as scenario writer for a motion picture.

Anne is an extra—or is trying to be, for she has worked just one day since coming to Hollywood. She has had stings experience—in black comedies, which, Dan tells her, is the best foundation for an extra to have. Dan is a little disappointed with Anne's lack of talent from little things he had said. That same evening they go to the Roosevelt Hotel to dance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

It was wonderful to dance with someone who followed you as effortlessly and lightly as a flower inclining in the wind; who responded to your every mood as though the two of you had been born to dance together.

Dan Rorimer told himself before he had gone around the crowded floor that it was for girls like Anne Winter that the modern rhythms had been invented. "Happy days are here again!" He had heard her sing again. "He had heard her sing again!"

Happy days are here again!"

And now the whole orchestra took up the refrain—brasses, strings, drums. . . Fast rhythm; happy, carefree rhythm. Someone near them said, "Wheel!" A score of voices sang the chorus, and cheers tore the air when the song was ended.

"And that's that," said Rorimer, walking off the floor with her. "You've been holding out on me. Why didn't you tell me you sang?"

Anne laughed. "If you call that singing."

"I'm discovering something new about you every minute. Did you sing on the stage any?"

"No."

Their waiter arrived before Rorimer could ask her why, Anne said, "I'd like something with plenty of ice in it." She ordered a salad of avocado and artichoke for her, and an iced drink.

She began to question him about his plans. "You gave me the impression," she said, "that you weren't exactly satisfied with things at Continental Pictures. I call it rather wonderful—there are millions of you know who'd give anything to do what you're doing; and such a very few who can."

Rorimer said, "Perhaps I'm dissatisfied with myself. I told myself before I came out here that I wouldn't criticize their methods. But . . ." He stopped. Not so good. Mustn't complain; she'd think him too temperamental and finicky.

"But what?" she prodded.

Dan smiled sheepishly and lit a cigarette. "You know Frederick Atwood, of course."

She nodded. "On the screen, that is."

"Well, can you imagine him playing the part of a hard-boiled police reporter?"

"I think there are lots of others who could do it better."

"You put it too mildly; anybody could do it better. . . Instead of saying, 'We need a story for Frederick Atwood and this will do, you'd think they'd go about it differently and say, 'So-and-so is just the man for this story—let's give it to him.' But that's not the way they do it—not in my case, at least."

ANNE said, "But Atwood is a star. They wouldn't give the part to him unless it was a good one. Probably he wouldn't do it. You ought to find some comfort in that."

"Perhaps. I don't pretend to know the first thing about the movie business—but Atwood, the handsome lover. . ."

He broke off again, said that Continental did some funny things anyway, and the motion picture business should not be judged by one studio alone. What he asked, were her own plans?

Anne Winter's hands moved expressively. "Just keep trying, I suppose," she smiled, and Rorimer felt swift compunction.

"And I'm kidding," he said, "just as if all of Hollywood ought to be run to suit me. Do you keep in touch with Central Casting Bureau?"

"I telephone religiously every day."

"Well, you'll get your chance; and when you do there won't be any stopping you."

She smiled at his enthusiasm. "I don't even know how I photographed. The day I worked I was used in a cafe scene and I was about a block away from the camera."

Rorimer laughed. "That's the way it goes. But you mustn't feel discouraged. When a girl comes out here all alone and lands even one day of work in her first 10 days or so, she's doing a great deal better than most. Do you know how many extras are registered at Central Casting?"

She shook her head.

"Nearly 18,000—and they receive anywhere from 75 to 100 applications every day. Mind you, that many applications merely to be registered! Lord only knows how many they turn down and how many actually are looking for jobs! Paul Collier—he's a newspaper friend of mine—Collier tells me there's an actual need for about $40 extras a day. One of the officials told him that in 1929 there was just one woman in all of those thousands who averaged five days of work a week. I haven't got a very good head for arithmetic, but Collier was telling me this just yesterday and it stuck by me. According to some statistics issued by Central Casting, the average wage paid to an extra is $9.13 a day. Collier spread it out over the number registered and the average daily employment and figured that it would be something like 44 cents a day for each of them."

Rorimer stopped abruptly, realizing that his recital was not very heartening to one who had hoped to win her way into pictures by the extra route. "I'm not meaning to discourage you," he said lamely.

"You're not," she said, smiling a little crookedly. "One of the officials explained that it was his duty to acquaint me with some of the disappointments I would be sure to encounter. He made it very clear why they felt it was necessary for me to have enough money to last me for a year."

Dan said, "Well, you're the kind that's bound to get ahead anywhere. I wouldn't have gone mathematical on you if I hadn't thought that. If you can get a screen test, now. . . I wish I could cultivate the acquaintance of somebody important and get him to give you one."

Anne told him she had rather he wouldn't.

"But why not?" he asked. "Not that I could promise anything, but I'd like to."

"Because," she said softly, "I'd like to be able to tell my father that I had done it all myself."

Rorimer said he understood. He held up his water glass, and his eyes sought hers.

"The music calls again," he said. "Do we dance?"

"We certainly do."

"Spoken like a true friend! But first a toast; a toast to Anne Winter. May she succeed beyond our wildest dreams; may all Hollywood fall at her feet."

He leaned a little nearer, smiling into her dark eyes. "And," he said, "may she never forget good old Dan Rorimer. . . Come on, let's dance."

Columbus' Birth Will Be Debated

Peruvian Historian's Claim to Come Before Indies Committee Soon

MADRID, July 30.—(UP)—The contention of the Peruvian historian Luis Ulloa that Christopher Columbus was born in Catalonia will be carefully examined by the Committee of the Indies of the Royal Academy of History next fall. The committee, shortly before adjourning its activities for the summer, decided to devote its energies this fall to a study of Ulloa's claims and theories as well as to the examination of the documents which he cites.

Once the committee has thoroughly studied the matter it will be formally debated by the Academy, which will then reach its conclusions. Since the Academy is a body officially recognized by the government besides ranking high among the learned societies of the world, its decision would carry with it considerable weight.

The Committee of the Indies, considers that Ulloa's works concerning the lineage of the Duke of Veragua are not worthy of the Committee's consideration.

Ulloa holds a corresponding membership in the Royal Historical Academy. The president of the society is the Duke of Alba.

Strange how the broadest statements generally originate in the narrowest minds.

The primary law forbids any person under 21 years of age to vote at that time this practice has not been followed closely in the state.

A person who is not 21 before the primary is not permitted to be a candidate for office, Mr. Norwood ruled.

Soviet Cargo Ship Barred by U. S. Treasury Official

They hold loaded with Russian pulpwood from Archangel, the Norwegian freighter "Christian Bors," shown above, and a British freighter, were barred from entry by customs officials at New York. It was the first open clash between Soviet and American trade interests, and the embargo followed protests that the pulpwood was of convict, or forced labor, origin. Forty more ships carrying similar cargoes were reported to be on their way to the United States, and these were to be barred by order of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, pictured at right.

Americans See Swedish Events

Large Number of Tourists Visit Land of Lief Ericson This Year

GOTHENBURG, July 31.—(UP)—It is true that the ancient Scandinavian Viking, Lief Ericson, discovered America, it may also be said that modern American travelers have "discovered" Sweden this summer.

Attracted by the industrial arts exhibition in Stockholm, still in progress, and the international sailing races off Gothenburg and Sandhamn a greater number of tourists from the United States have visited Sweden than ever before.

In the last two months, the ships of the Swedish-American line have carried nearly 10,000 passengers on east-bound trips, a substantial part of these being native Americans.

Many tourists have lingered to see the midnight sun in northern Sweden, or to visit the historic provinces of Dalecarlia and Vermland, the latter sheltering the birthplace of Captain John Ericsson, who built the Monitor.

Oklahoma Candidate Shoots Son of Opponent

WILBURTON, Okla., July 31.—(AP)—J. W. Callahan, county judge, was charged with assault with intent to kill here today, following the probable fatal shooting of Frank Briggs, son of Claude Briggs, who opposed Callahan yesterday as a candidate for the state senate.

Later officers took Callahan out of the city because of high feeling. His whereabouts were kept secret. The shooting followed a conversation between Callahan and young Briggs about the election.

The elder Briggs tonight appeared to have won the Democratic senatorial nomination over Callahan.

With the withdrawal of Benton McMillin, former governor of Tennessee, from the race for the Democratic nomination for junior U. S. senator the contest has narrowed down between Senator William E. Brock, above, and Dr. John R. Neal of Knoxville, below. Dr. Neal won fame for his defense of Prof. John Scopes during the "anti-evolution" trial at Dayton.

Welcome

'Tis summer in the South,
In gaily the world is dressed,
And the sun is gently beaming
On a land that is blessed.

The flowers are blooming
And the tall grasses sway,
The crops are laid by
And it's time for Festival Day!

It's time for rejoicing—
So from far and near
We welcome friends and strangers
To our Festival this year.

You're sure to enjoy it,
And your share of melons get;
It's going to be a day
That you will not forget.

So don't look cautious thro' the fence,
But joyfully lift the latch
And drive right into Hope—
The nation's melon-patch!

Suggestions For Canning Offered

Farm Folks Urged to Can All Surplus Products This Season

Since our fruit crop is so limited, I think it well to conserve all surplus products by combining them into palatable pickles, and relishes. Even the cantaloupes, watermelon rind and the old, yellow, ripe cucumbers can be conserved.

I am submitting the following recipes:

Cantaloupe Pickle (Sour)
Select under-ripe cantaloupe, peel, cut into sections. Place two pounds in stone jar and pour over a boiling mixture of one quart of vinegar, one pint of water, adding spices tied in spice-bag:

1-2 teaspoonfuls of mace
2 teaspoonfuls of cinnamon
6 teaspoonfuls of cloves
1 pound of sugar

Next day pour vinegar off and bring to boil. Add sugar and drop in the spices and sections of fruit and boil until transparent. Pack fruit in jars and boil vinegar mixture for fifteen minutes longer to make a heavier syrup. Pour it over the fruit, cap jars, and process pints for fifteen minutes.

Cantaloupe Pickles (Sweet)
Soak one and one-half pounds of rind for three hours in lime water (two ounces of lime to one gallon of water). Drain and soak in fresh water for one hour. Make a syrup by boiling together one quart of water and one pint of sugar, add well-drained rind, and cook rapidly for thirty minutes. Allow to stand over night. Next morning add one cupful of sugar, one cupful of vinegar, and spice-bag (One tablespoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, and allspice, and one-half tablespoonful of mace.) Cook until rind is transparent (about one hour). Cool and pack in small jars. Cover with the strained syrup and process 30 minutes.

Pickled Watermelon Rind
One pound of watermelon rind boiled in one quart of salt water (one-quarter cupful of salt to one quart of water) for fifteen minutes. Drain well and dip into a cold bath until the flavor of salt is gone. Drain carefully and stand in lime water over night (two ounces of lime to one gallon of water). Drain next morning and cook rapidly to a syrup made by boiling together one pound of sugar, one pint of water, one pint of vinegar, one teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, allspice, and one-half teaspoonful of mace. Cook until rind becomes clear and transparent. Cool before packing, process 30 minutes as for other sweet pickles, and seal.

Ripe Cucumber Pickles
Pare and remove seeds from ripe cucumbers. Cut into cubes. Cover with salt and let stand overnight. In the morning, drain and rinse until salt is removed. Prepare syrup as for watermelon-rind pickles, and cook cucumbers in it until they are clear and transparent. Pack in jars, cover with the hot syrup, process 30 minutes and seal.

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.
